

REDS SMASH CITY WITH SHELLS

Holiday Tragedies Bring Death to 593

18 INJURED IN CITY, VICINITY, 27 DIE IN OHIO

Accidents, Fires, Shootings and Drownings Contribute to Nation-Wide Toll.

ILLINOIS LEADS, 60 DEAD

Clear Weather Boosts Mishaps in State; 6 Hurt in City in Single Collision.

Christmas holiday tragedies brought death to at least 593 persons in the nation, including 27 in Ohio, one of the heaviest holiday tolls on record. Last year there were 508 violent deaths over Christmas.

Although the Mansfield area escaped without a fatality, 19 persons were reported injured in eight traffic mishaps in the district. Only two of the persons, however, were believed seriously hurt. They were Marion women, injured in Bucyrus.

Automobile, train, and airplane accidents, fires, shootings and drownings contributed to the nation-wide toll. Despite Ohio's 27 dead, the state was far down the list in the number killed.

Illinois, with 60 dead, led all other states. California had 43 and Michigan 36. Only little Delaware had no fatalities. Last year five states kept their slates clean. Automobile crashes claimed 397 lives in all states.

Highways Jammed

Clear weather and ice-free highways over most of Ohio were believed to have boosted the state's traffic toll. State highway patrolmen said there probably would have been fewer fatal accidents if snow had fallen, forcing pleasure seekers to stay at home. Highways were clogged Monday afternoon and night with vacationists returning home.

Throughout the nation, 31 persons were listed as suicides, 24 died from burns, and 67 died from other causes, exclusive of traffic.

Eleven persons were hurt in traffic in the immediate Mansfield district, including six in a collision at Fourth and Main streets Monday afternoon.

Christmas Snow That Didn't Fall Now Due Tonight

That snow that didn't arrive in time for Christmas is due tonight or Wednesday, the weatherman said today.

Heavy snow covered most of the plains states today, ending a prolonged drought in the dust bowl area of Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado.

The storm was expected to diminish as it moves eastward, however, and the forecast said the snow will be comparatively light in Ohio. In western Kansas the fall ranged up to 15 inches deep.

While most of Ohio had to do without Christmas snow, freak storms brought a heavy fall to central Kentucky and parts of southern Indiana.

There was bright, snappy Christmas weather all over Ohio and in Mansfield the temperature fell to 18 degrees Christmas morning while the highest for the day was 37. Today's low was 27 and at noon it was 29.

Speeding Car Plows Into 2 Bedrooms

Wild Ride Ends In Edison Home, Falling Plaster Covers 4 Asleep.

(By Staff Correspondent)

MT. GILEAD—A wild midnight ride in a stolen car that climaxed a Christmas celebration had these repercussions today:

It put Richard Roop, R. D. 1, Mt. Vernon, in a Mt. Vernon hospital with a fractured right leg and right arm.

It put an automobile into two bedrooms in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott at near-by Edison which was partially destroyed.

And it damaged an auto owned by Fred A. Bollinger, Fredericktown undertaker.

It all started, Deputy Sheriff Milton C. Griffin said, when Roop stole Bollinger's 1939 sedan in Chesterville last night and then drove up to a filling station here and ordered $2 worth of gasoline. He left without paying, telling the attendant he would be back later, Griffin was told.

Heading west on route 95, he approached a grade crossing at Edison, a mile and a half west of here, at a high rate of speed. Authorities estimated he was traveling 80 miles an hour when the machine hit the crossing which rises about five feet above the highway.

Car Soars 75 Feet

The speed which the car struck the crossing hurled it 75 feet through the air, state highway patrolmen said. The auto careened over to the left side of the road, knocked over a sign, missed a telephone pole and crashed into the Scott home, several hundred feet from the crossing.

The machine plowed between two downstairs bedrooms at 1 a. m. Mr. and Mrs. Scott were sleeping in one. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Geik of Dalton, O., were in the other.

The impact tore a hole into the side of the dwelling, unleashing a shower of plaster on the four sleeping people and loosened the house from its foundation.

In the hospital, Roop admitted to Deputy Sheriff Griffin that he had been drinking and that he took the machine.

No charge had been filed against him today.

Winter Helps Finns Fight Reds

Finland and general winter stopped the western drive of the Communist bear, as shown on this map. Raging blizzards and frigid cold in the third of Finland lying north of the Arctic Circle, coupled with bombing of the vital Murmansk-Leningrad railroad, cut off Reds from food, munitions and shelter. Russian supply ships, fearing they would be ice-locked, left Murmansk as the Russian retreat turned into a near-rout. Since the above map was drawn, Russians have started a long-range artillery bombardment.

FORMER WATER CHIEF STRICKEN

Arthur C. McMullen, Slated to Be Named to Post Again by New Mayor, Dies at 51.

Arthur C. McMullen, 51, former superintendent of the Mansfield waterworks and active in Republican circles here, died at 5 a. m. today at his home, 168 Newman street, of a heart attack.

Mr. McMullen, who was employed by the state highway department, was to have been named superintendent of the waterworks again this week and was to have taken office with the new Republican administration next week, Mayor-elect William J. Locke said today.

He held the superintendency during the administration of former Mayor Earl A. McFarland. Since then he has been connected with the highway department.

Prior to his city appointment, he was employed as a foreman at the Barnes Manufacturing company.

Mr. McMullen served as a member of the city health board under former Mayor Charles Moore. He also was active in Boy Scout work and was counselor of Troop No. 4 at the time of his death. He formerly served the troop as scoutmaster.

Mr. McMullen was born on a farm near Mansfield, Sept. 6, 1888, the son of Levi and Louise Mcullen. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 5)

City Celebration Wasn't All 'Peace and Good Will,' 85 Police Calls Indicate

Family and Neighborhood Quarrels Plentiful Over Holiday.

CUYAHOGA VOTES ON RELIEF LEVY

Special Election To Be Held Tomorrow On Welfare Funds.

CLEVELAND —(AP)—Cuyahoga county voters will go to the polls tomorrow to vote in a special election upon a 3.4-mill county welfare and relief levy.

If the levy is passed by the necessary 65 per cent majority, the funds will be used for soldiers and sailors relief, care of the insane, tuberculosis patients, dependent children, the feeble-minded and the blind.

County commissioners have said they would not levy more than 2.98 mills in each of the two years for which the levy will be authorized if passed. The same levy for a five-year period was turned down by voters in November.

GIVES 155 JOBS

WPA Opens 3 New Projects; 60 Others to Be Added Soon.

Three new county WPA road projects opened today to provide jobs for 155 men thrown out of work temporarily when three other projects closed.

Approximately 60 additional men will get work on the new projects late next week, Project Engineer Carl Adkins said.

Seventy-five of the transferred 155 will be employed on the Hanley road project in Washington township south of Mansfield. Fifty were put to work on the South Diamond road job and 30 on the Mansfield disposal plant drive project. They were taken from the completed Mansfield streets, Shelby streets, and Mifflin township projects.

The three new jobs will cost approximately $62,800. Adkins said. Largest is the Hanley road widening project estimated at $35,000. About a half-mile of the South Diamond road will be rebuilt at a cost of $20,000, while 900 feet of the disposal plant drive will be built at a cost of $7,800.

HAD CHRISTMAS 'FREE,' ANYWAY

Youth Escapes, Morrow Jail to Spend Holiday With Friends; He's Back in Cell Now.

MT. GILEAD —A 20-year-old youth who fled from the Morrow county jail Christmas eve and managed to evade police long enough to celebrate Christmas "on the outside" was back in his cell today.

Less than 30 hours after he had crawled from a cellar window in the jail, Howard Stover, was recaptured by Crawford county authorities at the home of friends where he had sought refuge.

Stover, bound over to the Morrow county grand jury two weeks ago for stealing junk escaped from the jail shortly after 6 p. m. Christmas eve when he was sent to the jail cellar by Deputy Sheriff M. C. Griffin to get some coal.

He was apprehended last night by Crawford County Deputy Sheriff Schriek at 10 p. m. yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Young one mile north of North Robinson who are also held under bond for the grand jury.

Stover was captured shortly after he had telephoned to the jail residence and told Sheriff Oscar George's wife, "I'll be back in a couple of days."

Deputy Griffin said the youth stole an automobile owned by Warren McClelland who was attending Christmas eve services at Pleasant Grove church. The abandoned car was found near the home of the youth's father, Mac Stover, near Bloominggrove in Crawford county. Stover had already fled after visiting his father. He was then traced to the Young residence.

DEM HARMONY IN CONGRESS PERILED AGAIN

Hotly Disputed Legislation, Presidential Powers Face Session Opening Jan. 3.

TRADE AGREEMENTS HIT

Roosevelt Authority to Make Reciprocal Treaties Heads for Bitter Battle.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The harmonious Democratic legislative front established to enact President Roosevelt's special session neutrality bill is menaced today by controversial issues awaiting congress.

Presidential politics will be a major factor in congress' 1940 deliberations which begin Jan. 3. Apart from the questions of nominees and party platforms, grave issues of public policy will have to be disposed of.

The regular session of congress which adjourned last Aug. 5 left unfinished business which is likely to disturb both Democratic and Republican party lines. Hotly disputed legislation expires next year unless congress can be persuaded to continue them.

Mr. Roosevelt's authority to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements without congressional consent or advice already is the center of political discussion in which Republicans and a group of Democrats from agricultural states proclaim determination to prevent its extension. That authority will expire June 12, 1940. The reciprocal trade program was sponsored by Secretary of State Cordell Hull rather than by Mr. Roosevelt, but the president announced this month that he would press for its extension.

Speculate on Hull Position. Particular significance attaches to the trade agreement dispute because of Hull's position as a likely compromise Democratic presidential nominee if the president does not seek a third term. Rejection of the Hull trade agreement plan practically would eliminate him from 1940 consideration, whereas its extension would (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2)

NORRIS TO QUIT

Veteran Senator Announces He'll Retire in 1943.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Senator George W. Norris, 78-year-old veteran of many heated political battles, said today that he expected to retire when his present term expires in 1943.

In excellent health, the Republican independent Nebraskan returned to Washington prepared for an active session of congress and for possible participation in the 1940 presidential campaign.

"My work will be finished," said Norris in emphasizing that he is serving his last term in public office.

His friends have urged him to cap his long career by serving a term as governor of Nebraska, where he established the one-house legislative system, but he declined. He started his career in the senate March 4, 1913.

Bombers Plague Besieged Town

'Big Berthas' Launch Intense Firing On Viipuri From 25 Miles Away; Parts of City Ablaze As Christmas Day Bombardment Continues.

By WEBB MILLER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

FINNISH ARMY GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, VIIPURI—Russian "Big Bertha" shells smashed into Viipuri (Viborg) today in a bombardment which started Christmas evening and showed no signs of ending.

Throughout the night the shells, crashing onto homes and buildings in twos, threes and fours from the Russian lines 25 miles away, and the roaring fire engines on their way to put out fires had made a pandemonium of the city.

The city was now under an almost continuous air raid alarm. Planes swept over Viipuri, dropping bombs, during the daylight hours yesterday and the first alarm came today just before 9 a. m. Anti-aircraft fire at once started.

At midnight, the Russian "Big Berthas," a new development, began firing with increasing intensity. They seemed to carry higher charges of explosives than had the first ones, and they were smashing craters six feet deep and 12 feet across in the frozen earth.

In parts of the city the bright sun was obscured by a heavy pall of smoke from burning buildings. All services such as gas and water had been cut off. Restaurants and shops were closed and there was no food for hotel guests.

The constant air alarms delayed telephone communications. Sometimes Viipuri was cut off for hours at a time, and calls were often interrupted after a connection had been established.

All through Christmas day the planes had bombed the city, and all through the night the shells crashed down, adding new ruins and sending new families out into the streets and a temperature of 15 degrees below zero.

As I telephone this dispatch to Copenhagen, no end of the bombardment is in sight.

PRESSURE: New Peace Moves By Roosevelt, Pope Stir Hopes

By DEWITT MACKENZIE, (AP) Foreign Affairs Writer.

The renewed efforts of President Roosevelt and Pope Pius toward peace cannot but increase hope that war's end may come, if not just now, still without the necessity of a long and destructive struggle.

He would indeed be a pessimist who saw no good in the steady growth of the pressure for peace. That is especially so since the call comes not only from great personalities throughout the world but from the folk in ordinary walks of life.

Most significant about it all is that this feeling isn't restricted to non-belligerents. The peoples of the countries at war, while loyal to their governments and prepared to bow their necks to the yoke, definitely desire to get back to their jobs and their flower gardens.

The week-end saw not only our president and his holiness combining to terminate the European conflict, but leaders of the great Protestant and Jewish congregations of America responded quickly to the president's appeal for support in the crusade.

Prime Minister DeValera of Ireland came on the air to add his plea. He advocated that the nations at war seek a settlement "now in good-will rather than wait until exhaustion has forced the requisite dispositions for peace."

Meantime, of course, there still stands the very recent offer of the queen of the Netherlands and the king of the Belgians to mediate between the allies and Herr Hitler. Mussolini never has ceased to work quietly for peace.

All in all this represents a great driving force which can hardly be expected to terminate the European conflict, but leaders of the great (Continued on Page 5, Col. 8)

AT THE FRONT: Hitler Steps On French Soil To Visit Troops

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Adolf Hitler crossed to French soil on Christmas eve to visit the German front lines, the official news agency revealed today.

The fuhrer had gone to the western front for Christmas instead of remaining at his mountain home at Berchtesgaden. He distributed gifts and ate the regular fare of the front line troops.

Official sources had disclosed that he visited pill boxes at the front but prior to the announcement by the official news agency, D. N. B., it was not known that Hitler stepped on French soil.

A correspondent of the agency revealed details of Hitler's front line visit, which took place while radio loud speakers throughout Germany carried to the people the message that there could be no peace until complete victory had been achieved.

"En route to Spichern Heights, which we re-took from the enemy several weeks ago, Hitler crossed the French frontier for the first time since 1918," the agency's correspondent said.

"We had to pass through the trenches of Spichern Heights." One stop was at a military airport where the pilots were at luncheon in a big hall, gaily decorated for Christmas with evergreen. The fuhrer entered suddenly and sat with the squadron leader. The pilots were described as amazed to see him.

Declares 'Actual Hunger' Existed In Relief Crisis

REPORT GIVEN ON PROBE MADE IN CLEVELAND

Social Workers Find Evidence of 'Widespread Suffering' in Month-Long Crisis.

(By International News Service) CLEVELAND — There was "widespread suffering and actual hunger" during Cleveland's recent relief crisis, a report issued by the Cleveland chapter of the American Association of Social Workers declared today.

The survey of 374 relief cases during the period from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15, when the relief situation was acute, was made by request of City Welfare Director Fred W. Ramsey and Relief Commissioner Frank G. Jones. It was directed by Miss Florence M. Mason of the Catholic Charities corporation, who is chairman of the chapter.

Of the 374 cases studied, 219 included the wards of many agencies such as the city, county, juvenile court, soldiers and sailors relief commission and private agencies. The other 155 cases involved only direct relief clients of the city.

"Cases cited are ample proof there was widespread suffering and actual hunger as a result of the recent relief crisis," the report said. "This suffering was the more intense because of the effect of inadequate standards of aid prevailing for many months before the crisis."

"Case stories include sick persons and families with children unable to get relief, although regulations permitted them to receive it. This raises the question as to whether this might not have been the result of the 25 per cent cut in the relief staff."

"As a result, community costs will increase heavily in hospitalization and delinquency."

"This kind of 'crisis' is preventable," the report charged, "and must not be allowed to happen again."

In the section of the report dealing with the 219 cases, among the findings were:

Of this number, 128 did not have adequate food.

There were nine cases of actual eviction and 30 of threatened eviction.

Suicide was threatened by 10 cases and 16 came to the verge of mental breakdowns.

The one-third cut in city food orders allowed a family of four 54 cents a day for food, although federal standards call for a minimum diet costing 97 cents a day.

Of the 155 cases studied which were of persons cut off relief entirely from Nov. 23 to Dec. 15, when the city halted issuance of food orders to 13,000 single persons and married couples without children, the report said:

There was no income for 138 cases.

Begging was resorted to by 14, and others sought handouts from stores and restaurants.

Of the total, 138 suffered from inadequate food.

'Hated Father, So I Shot Him,' Says Akron Youth, 18

AKRON — James D. Hill, jr., 18-year-old NYA worker, was held on murder charges today after confessing he slew his father because he "hated" him.

Alva Russell, Summit county prosecutor, said the youth signed a confession telling of shooting his 44-year-old father in their home and dumping the body on the bank of the old Ohio canal, at a point two blocks from the city's business district.

"I hated my father . . . so I shot him," Detective Inspector Dennis Murray quoted Young Hill as saying. "He had threatened me several times. He also threatened my mother. When he would get crazy drunk it was hard to tell just what he was going to do."

Murray said the youth told of shooting his father in the head with a borrowed gun as he slept on a bed. Young Hill declared he returned later, loaded his father's body into their car and drove it to the canal bank.

The body remained unidentified 24 hours after discovery by a passerby. Then the son appeared at a mortuary and made the identification, saying he had read of the "murder mystery" discrepancies in his story led to questioning by Murray.

11 CARS DERAILED CLEVELAND — A railroad crew today started repair of about 75 feet of the New York Central railroad's track, ripped up by the derailment of 11 cars of a 60-car freight train. Trainmaster E. J. Gibbons said cause of the derailment, at switching yards in East Cleveland, was undetermined.

Dies Drafts Report on 'American Menaces'

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield Boy Scouts who received skis and ice skates for Christmas were hoping today for some old-fashioned winter weather at least by next week, so they will have an opportunity to try out their presents at the second period of the annual scout winter camp at Camp Avery Hand. For the past two years the scouts have had spring-like weather at winter camp. Twenty-two scouts from nearby towns are at camp this week.

It looked like a cigar factory at Central fire station this morning as city firemen were doing the annual one-for-me-and-one-for-you division of Christmas cigars. Although both police and firemen didn't fare so well this year as in previous years, there still were nine cigars each for 31 firemen. They were laid out in 31 neat little mounds this morning, waiting for each of the two shifts of "fire-eaters" to claim them.

It's a small world after all was the way Mayor-Elect William J. Locke put it today in relating how he met a former Mansfielder during his recent vacation in Florida. Stopping at the Ocala National forest near Jupiter Springs, Locke said he was introduced to the superintendent of the recreation center, Arthur L. Marwick, who was born and reared in Mansfield and moved to the south several years ago.

That Mansfield matron who takes considerable pride in fashioning beautiful Christmas packages had a startling surprise in store for her Monday morning as she went to the attic to get the gifts to pile around the tree. Instead of finding the gaily-colored packages the way she had left them after spending several hours wrapping them, she found every one snipped open, the pretty ribbons cut and the contents scattered over the floor. Her four-year-old daughter admitted the act which nearly ruined a well-planned Christmas. The packages were repacked and sealed, but hastily.

Under the leadership of the council, co-operating states started to break down trade barriers this year. The attack on taxes and regulations which discriminate against out-of-state products will be made on a regional basis in 1940, the council said.

At one of the first conferences in Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 5 and 6, representatives from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania will attempt to reach an agreement on legislation to end the discrimination against out-of-state beverages.

After this conference, the council said, commissions from New York and Pennsylvania will meet to plan a detailed program for lowering all tariff walls that hinder trade between the two states.

As secretary of the advisory committee on public assistance of the National Association of Attorneys General, the council will direct action toward the adoption of uniform welfare codes by the states next year.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Shafter funeral home with Rev. E. G. Hamilton, pastor of the Christian church, officiating. Burial will be in Bellville cemetery.

Mr. Long spent his entire life in Bellville. He was preceded in death by two daughters. Surviving are five daughters, Lena Long, Mrs. Sarah Strebe, Mrs. Lizzie Baker, Mrs. Freda Keeler and Mrs. Ida Poland, and four sons, Austin, Calvin, Shannon and Ora, all of Bellville and vicinity, 31 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

43 STATES TO STUDY AID PLAN

Council of State Governments to Discuss Trade Barriers, Other Mutual Problems.

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO — At least 43 of the United States will get together next year to solve their mutual problems on a mutual basis.

The Council of State Governments, which encourages and sponsors many of these interstate conferences, reported today the problems of trade barriers and transient indigents would be among the first to command attention in 1940.

U. S. DEVELOPS NEW DEVICES TO COMBAT ATTACKS FROM PLANES

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON — Three new devices to combat air attacks have been developed by the army in recent months, it was disclosed today.

These steps toward weakening the efficacy of warfare from the skies, are:

1.—The new 30-calibre semi-automatic shoulder rifle has proved a valuable weapon against "hedge hopping" planes which hug the ground to strafe troops with machine gun fire.

2.—The modern 37-mm anti-aircraft gun has been developed as the most effective weapon to protect front line positions against air attacks.

3.—New sound locators have been developed which can spot a plane at night and throw an 800,000,000 candle power searchlight beam on it.

Barnes pointed out that the new shoulder rifle "can be fired two and a quarter times as fast as the Springfield rifle . . . and shows great promise in combatting low flying planes."

Of the new mobile 37-mm anti-aircraft gun, Barnes wrote:

"This fully automatic gun fires at the rate of 125 rounds per minute. The projectile, weighing about one and a third pounds, has an instantaneous fuse designed to detonate its charge of high explosive upon striking any part of the airplane. . . . It is doubtful whether any bomber could survive more than two or three such hits."

Discussing the new locator and searchlight, he declared:

"Field tests have indicated that it will be difficult for bombing squadrons to make night attacks on defended areas without being detected."

CONGRESS GETS DATA OBTAINED IN PROBE JAN. 3

Communist, Nazi, and Fascist Movements to Be Assailed as 'Peril to Americanism.'

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON — The Dies committee will make a report to congress on Jan. 3 assailing Communist, Nazi and Fascist movements as "menaces to American democracy," but will recommend no important legislation, it was disclosed today.

The committee, in a tentative report prepared by its staff and now being circulated to members, asserted that there is ample legislation in the law books to make possible prosecution of hundreds of persons engaged in subversive activity.

The most effective weapon in combatting un-American organizations—many of which are alleged to be merely "racketeering" money-making bodies—is the white heat of publicity, the tentative report declared.

Chairman Dies (D.) of Texas, and a majority of the seven-member committee will recommend its continuation with an appropriation of at least $100,000 to carry on its investigation and exposure of Communist and Nazi activities until 1942.

Cite Browder Indictment. The committee report is expected to cite the indictment of Earl Browder, head of the Communist party in America, on false passport charges, and similar indictments against other Communist leaders, as example of what can be accomplished by the department of justice in a rigid law enforcement campaign.

Prosecution of Communist and Nazi leaders for failure to register with the state department under existing law as agents of foreign governments will be urged in the report, it was indicated.

The committee is also expected to recommend that local law enforcement officials investigate the books of subversive organizations to determine whether charges, such as the embezzlement of funds on which Nazi Leader Fritz Kuhn was convicted in New York, can be brought.

After they were in for a time the criminal scum became, in effect, the local government. They control the government but leave it, nominally, in the hands of the natives.

It should be observed that some of the local talent has shown a remarkable precocity in grafting, Roosevelt did to Thanksgiving.

ILLNESS FATAL

John F. O'Leary, Former City, Newspaper Employee, Dies.

John Francis O'Leary, 55, of 59 East First street, former circulation manager of the old Mansfield Journal and one-time city employee, died in General hospital today after an illness of eight weeks.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 12, 1885, Mr. O'Leary came to this city 17 years ago. He was employed as meter reader in the waterworks department during the administrations of the late Mayor Charles M. Lantz.

Surviving are his wife, Eugenia; three sons, James, Robert and William; two daughters, Patricia and Kathleen at home; two brothers, Leo and Clement, and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Delschneider of St. Louis.

Funeral services will be held at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 a. m. Thursday with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery in Crestline. The body will be at the Wagnner funeral home until the time of services.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Federal Officials Don't Benefit 2 Florida Cities In Denouncing Crime Now

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—If any spark of the old Chamber of Commerce spirit still burns in Miami and Miami Beach, both Attorney General Frank Murphy and J. Edgar Hoover of the F. B. I. will be fearlessly denounced for defaming those communities just as their business season is about to begin.

Mr. Murphy, in Washington, said hoodlums from the country at large were now congregating there, and Mr. Hoover, on the ground, said he was increasing his staff in the Miami district to meet "an influx of criminal scum."

If Mr. Hoover and Mr. Murphy knew anything about the etiquette of the case they would know that the time to discover that criminal scum from the rest of the nation has been drifting into the Miami is along toward the middle of April under the present revised schedule. Under the old calendar March 18 was the recognized date, being the day after St. Patrick's day, which formerly marked the end of the drinking and gambling season.

In those days drinking and the purveying of alcoholic beverages were forbidden in a mild way, and the purveying business attracted to those charming shores many of the most distinguished purveyors east of the Missouri. They also handled the slot machine business and still do run it in the intervals between reforms.

The Capone syndicate and some of its New York and Philadelphia connections long ago established this concession in a good deal the same way that Epropean nations obtain concessions to mine gold and diamonds in countries inhabited by men of color. That is to say, they moved in and bought it by private negotiation with crooked native leaders who claimed that these activities, conducted by skilled operators, would help develop the community.

After they were in for a time the criminal scum became, in effect, the local government. They control the government but leave it, nominally, in the hands of the natives.

It should be observed that some of the local talent has shown a remarkable precocity in grafting, Roosevelt did to Thanksgiving.

Nowadays the season extends until mid-April and just peters out, so no definite date can be fixed for crime must go day. If Mr. Murphy and Mr. Hoover had waited until April 15 they would have been on their manners, but to spring the crusade at this time is a very serious offense against native tradition in the Miami. But perhaps it was no worse than you could expect from this New Deal, remembering what Mr. Roosevelt did to Thanksgiving.

It is only the difference between penny-ante and table stakes. A penny-ante operator may show the same skill as a high roller, and the native criminal scum of the backwoods and string towns are not to be despised merely because their skill is exercised only in small dealings.

March 18, in the Miami, formerly was something like Bunker Hill day in Boston in that it was a strictly local holiday. It didn't have a name really, but it was always celebrated by banner lines in the papers saying "crime must go, says sheriff," and subheads about sweeping probes and permanent cleanups. Usually there would be a picture or two of some local officials smashing in the door of a speak-easy which had closed the night before or pretending to chop up an expensive roulette layout with an ax.

Nowadays the season extends until mid-April and just peters out, so no definite date can be fixed for crime must go day. If Mr. Murphy and Mr. Hoover had waited until April 15 they would have been on their manners, but to spring the crusade at this time is a very serious offense against native tradition in the Miami. IN THE RING

BY OSCAR RUHL

News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE outstanding pitcher in the American league this year was 21-year-old Bobby Feller of the Indians. Official statistics for the 1939 campaign literally shout the fact.

In his fourth year with the Cleveland club, Feller scored the greatest number of victories—24.

He finished high in the percentage column with .727, as he was beaten only nine times. The one-time farm boy from Iowa was the strikeout champion of the majors with 246 and, with 24 complete games, tied Buck Newsum of the Tigers for the circuit leadership in that important detail.

Somewhat offsetting his strikeout record were his 142 bases on balls and 14 wild pitches. But taking the big boy of the Indians

by and large, he was something of a phenomenon. No longer was he unable to hold runners on bases, and his curve was even more deadly than his fast ball.

He worked more innings than any other slinger in the league—297—and matched Red Ruffing of the Yankees for the supremacy in shutouts, with four.

Feller was the only American league pitcher to come close to the no-hit, no-run hall of fame

last season.

Bobby pitched two one-hitters

—against the Red Sox on May 25

in daylight—winning 11 to 0 with 10 whiffs, and against Detroit in a night game in Cleveland on June 27, 5 to 0, with 13 strikeouts. He also turned in a three-hit performance and a four-hitter, started 35 games and was taken out 11 times.

Feller ousted the 35-year-old

Ruffing from the No. 1 spot in the American league. But when it came to earned-run efficiency,

Bobby discovered his way to the title blocked by the 39-year-old

Robert Moss Grove of the Red

Sox. For the ninth year, an unprecedented period of supremacy,

Grove topped the earned-run record with 2.54 But Feller did well enough with 2.85.

The Hardin, Mont., basketball team has a Crow Indian player, named Hugh Plenty

Hopoo. Must be a brother of Him Heap Good... or should we have mentioned it.

Highest Priced Yearlings

Proved Colossal Flops.

FOURTEEN of the highest priced yearlings of 1938, purchased for a total of $196,300, earned collectively, only $8,575 as two-year-olds this year, less than six per cent of their original investments. All of which emphasizes the old saw that buying yearlings is still the greatest gamble in racing.

It's just as well that Duquesne didn't go to the Sun Bowl game in El Paso after all. Coming out of Pittsburgh the Dukes probably would have been blinded by sunlight.

Ex-Champion Jack Johnson

still insists—this time in a recent radio broadcast—that while Joe

Louis is a good fighter and a credit to the profession, the Brown

Bomber is not up to championship caliber. Johnson says, "If I only wasn't 65 years old I could take him."

It is astonishing that Jimmy

Fox, American league home run champion, did not hit a single round-trip clout in Shibe park, where he was so murderous in his years as a Mackian. Nor did Jim get one in Cleveland.

CLIPPED: "Francis Schmidt,

Ohio State coach, has been at various times a band leader, base horn and cello player,

girls basketball coach, esthetic dancing teacher and bayonet instructor. You could see in the Buck club last fall, the boys used their bayonet work against Minnesota, but went in to the spring ballet against

Cornell and Michigan."

Not All Is Well

Down Knoxville-Way.

NOT all is well. A Knoxville

followers of the Tennessee sue Volunteers are infuriated because the athletic authorities took only 33 of the 48 members of the squad to the Rose Bowl and refused to take the band.

The Cincinnati Reds and New York Yanks will play again next year—in spring training.

For a basketball game to watch,

how would you care to see one like that Long Island-Oranget

—56 to 55 in overtime. Dale

Selznick couldn't have put on a better one.

Louis Picked Over Conn as 'Fighter of the Year'

Ring Magazine Honors Champ

Pats Cerferino Garcia on Back for Having Registered 'More Creditable' Triumphs.

By JACK CUDDY
NEW YORK.—(AP)—"The Ring" magazine injects a couple of wallops into cauliflower controversies today when it picks Joe Louis over Billy Conn as the "fighter of the year" and pats Cerferino Garcia on the back for having registered "more creditable" triumphs than those of Al Hostak.

Proofs for "The Ring's" February issue reveal that the magazine has given its annual merit award to Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis for the third time in four years.

This action is in sharp disagreement with a recent vote of the boxing writers' association of New York.

The writers organization voted the Edward Neil Memorial plaque to light heavyweight Champion Conn for having made the greatest contributions to the sport during 1939.

Editor Nat Fleischer of the Ring emphasizes in his copyrighted story that the men who voted in the magazine's world-wide poll felt that the Brown Bomber's 4 knockouts in defense of his title and their attendant crowds, gates and publicity were far more important to the game than the rise of the handsome Conn, brilliant though it was.

The New York writers previously had given the Eddie Neil award to Conn because he had resurrected the light heavyweight division and revived Irish fighting prestige by virtue of his triumphs during '39 in three classes. He whipped Middleweight Fred Apostoli twice, wrestled the light heavy title from Melio Bettina and defended it once against him, beat Heavyweight Gus Dorazio, and defended against Light Heavyweight Gus Lesnevich.

However, Fleischer points out that Louis apparently attained his peak in '39 with knockout over John Henry Lewis, Jack Roper, Tony Galento and Bob Pastor. Meanwhile he raised his total ring earnings to $1,680,000 by receiving during the year $305,455.45.

Fleischer admits that Conn is deserving of some glory and therefore calls him "the classiest fighter of the year."

But this Louis-Conn controversy is mild compared to the hurly-burly existing in many quarters—particularly on the Pacific coast—over the respective merits of the two claimants to the middleweight championship.

Garcia of the Philippines and Los Angeles is recognized by the New York commission, while Al Hostak of Seattle is recognized by the national boxing association.

Fleischer braves assassination in Seattle by saying that Garcia turned in a better record for '39 than did Hostak, "and if Al hopes to gain universal recognition as a contender, he'll have to put Garcia out of the way." Fleischer then dons a bullet-proof vest as follows, "but in view of the recognition given to each, we list them on an equal basis."

The Ring magazine rates the top fighters of the world for 1939 as follows:

Heavyweight Division—Joe Louis, Tony Galento, Bob Pastor, Lou Nova, Tommy Farr, Johnny Paycheck, Red Burman, Max Schmeling, Arturo Godoy.

Light Heavyweights—Billy Conn, Gus Lesnevich, Melio Bettina, Len Harvey, Dave Clark, Tiger Jack Fox, Jack McGraw, Adolf Heuser, Teddy Yarosz, Al Gainer.

Middleweights—Cerferino Garcia and Al Hostak (leadership divided), Ron Richards, Ken Owens, Ben Brown.

Welterweights—Henry Armstrong, Ernie Roderick, Holman Williams, Freddie Zisic and Charley Butler.

Lightweights—Lou Ambroz, Sammy Ancoiti, Davey Day, Leo Rodak and Jackie Wilson.

Featherweights—Joe Archibald, Pat Scalzo, Simon Chavez, Dave Castillion and Harry Jeffra.

Bantamweights—Sixto Escobar, K. O. Noran, Tony Olivera, Lou Salica and George Pace.

Flivverweights—Little Dado, Enrico Uboldi, Joe Paterson, Jackie Jurich and Small Mountain.

Hipp's 289 New High Game for Pin Season

Failure of Six Pin to Drop on 11th Ball Knocks Mansfield Bowler Out of Chance to Hit 300.

OF ALL the bowlers in Mansfield, Farrell Hipp received the best Christmas "gift." It was a 289 game, which ruined a chance for a perfect score by a fraction of an inch.

After piling up 10 straight strikes with a series of beautiful hits, Hipp's 11th ball appeared as though it struck the "1-3" pocket perfectly, but the six pin stood.

He converted the spare and the 289 game was not a bad effort, although it could have been a 300 tilt just as well. He needed 12 in a row for the 300 game.

Hipp, who opened with a 218, dropped to 158 in his last game for a 665 series. The previous right he came through with a 667.

He paced the Ritz Nite club to a rousing 3003 total, which included games of 966, 1067 and 970.

The string was good for two wins over the Ingram-Martin Oldsmobiles in an N. C. O. Traveling league match at Meder alleys.

Sonny Meder contributed a 637 to the total, closing with a 246. Dale Cleskner came through with a 603. The Oldsmobiles came through with a 2742 total.

The lineup of the team to oppose the Celtics has not been completed, but it will include the strongest quintet of league players that can be put on the floor.

The New York team's lineup includes Dutch Dehnert, Davey Banks, Rusty Saunders and Nat Hickey, prominent in pro cage circles for many years.

THE Lieberkranz club ran into a 3053 total on Sunday, and dropped two games of its N. C. O. Traveling league series to the Coca Cola of Lorain.

Led by James' 694, which included scores of 225, 235 and 234, the Lorain club marked up games of 979, 1005 and 1066. The Lieberkranz club won the first game with a 993.

Duke Weber, with a 625, and Henry Michaels, 604, led the Mansfield leggers.

Outstanding for the Ohio team were Norris of Ironton, Nonnemacher of Columbus South, Alban of Columbus West, Hart of Columbus West, Mike Horvath of Mansfield, Imber and McBride.

Pro Team to Play in City Friday Compiles Remarkable Record in Last 3 Years.

One of the greatest winning records ever compiled in professional football has been registered by the Original New York Celtics, who will play the City Class A league All-Stars at Mansfield high school Friday night.

During the last three seasons, the Celtics have won 334 games against 24 defeats. They won 63 games in a row two seasons ago.

The Celtics won 111 games and lost only six during the 1936-37 season, added 114 wins against eight losses in 1937-38 and registered 109 victories in 119 contests last winter.

Their appearance at the Tiger fair Friday night will mark the first time in 15 years that the Celtics have appeared in Mansfield. They played in this city when they represented Cleveland in the old National pro league.

The lineup of the team to oppose the Celtics has not been completed, but it will include the strongest quintet of league players that can be put on the floor.

Louis Picked Over Conn as 'Fighter of the Year'

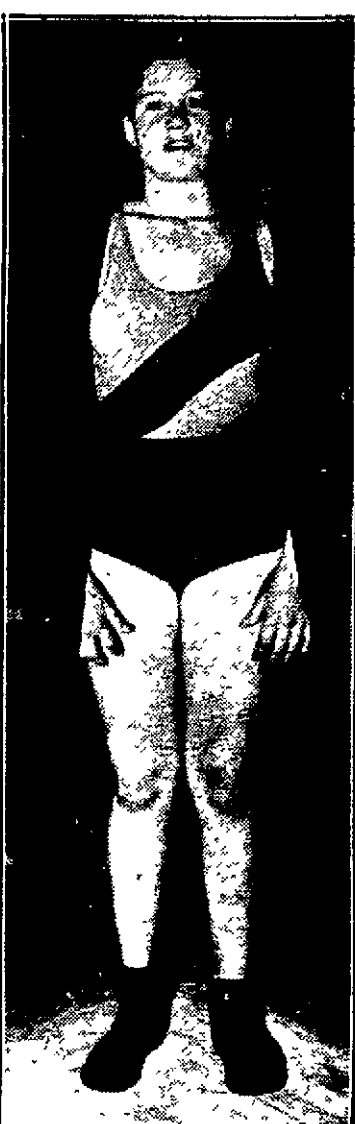

Ring Magazine Honors Champ

Pats Cerferino Garcia on Back for Having Registered 'More Creditable' Triumphs.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—"The Ring" magazine injects a couple of wallop into cauliflower controversies today when it picks Joe Louis over Billy Conn as the "fighter of the year" and Pats Cerferino Garcia on the back for having registered "more creditable" triumphs than those of Al Hostak.

Proofs for "The Ring's" February issue reveal that the magazine has given its annual merit award to Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis for the third time in four years. This action is in sharp disagreement with a recent vote of the boxing writers' association of New York.

Here Tonight

MAE WESTON

Mae Weston Faces Gladys Gillem in Bout Co-Headlining Armory Mat Show.

AT THE cross-roads of his professional wrestling career, Davey Reynolds of Cedar Rapids, Ia., will stake everything in his bid against Kimon Kudo of Japan at the Armory tonight. Defeated for the first time this season by the canny Jap last Thursday, Reynolds knows that even this lone reverse will be "poison" to his chances in the light-heavyweight division unless he avenges it.

Kudo and Reynolds will wrestle for two falls, with a 60-minute time limit and this time it will be with the knowledge that "anything goes." Reynolds stated in his demand for a return bout that he had been told that jujitsu would be barred and added that he would have been better prepared for the match had he known otherwise. Kudo won the bout with his famed "arm strangle," a combination of the American wrist-lock and Japanese jujitsu.

Co-headlining tonight's program is a feminine clash between two veritable dynamos of the ladies' division. One is Gladys Gillem of Birmingham, Ala., already known to local enthusiasts as a "killer." Her foe will be Mae Weston of Chicago, who is touted as a sure equal and possible superior to Miss Gillem in the art of mat mayhem. They will wrestle for two falls, with a one-hour time limit.

Opening the card will be the Masked Marvel's first important test. Winner over Bob Blake, Buzz Jones and Gus Johnson in his previous encounters, the masked sensation will be opposed to a vastly superior foe in the person of Bill Connor, powerful young contender from Independence, Kas. The contest will be for one fall, with a 20-minute time limit. Tickets are selling at Hunt's News Depot, City News and the Ring-side. First bout tonight will be at 8:30.

The writers organization voted the Edward Neil Memorial plaque to light heavyweight Champion Conn for having made the greatest contributions to the sport during 1939.

Editor Nat Fleischer of the Ring emphasizes in his copyrighted story that the men who voted in the magazine's world-wide poll felt that the Brown Bomber's 4 knockouts in defense of his title and their attendant crowds, gates and publicity were far more important to the game than the rise of the handsome Conn, brilliant though it was.

The New York writers previously had given the Eddie Neil award to Conn because he had resurrected the light heavyweight division and revived Irish fighting prestige by virtue of his triumphs during '39 in three classes. He whipped Middleweight Fred Apostoli twice, wrestled the light heavy title from Melio Bettina and defended it once against him, beat Heavyweight Gus Dorazio, and defended against Light Heavyweight Gus Lesnevich.

However, Fleischer points out that Louis apparently attained his peak in '39 with knockout over John Henry Lewis, Jack Roper, Tony Galento and Bob Pastor. Meanwhile he raised his total ring earnings to $1,680,000 by receiving during the year $303,455.45. Fleischer admits that Conn is deserving of some glory and therefore calls him "the classiest fighter of the year."

But this Louis-Conn controversy is mild compared to the hurly-burly existing in many quarters particularly on the Pacific coast—over the respective merits of the two claimants to the middleweight championship. Garcia of the Philippines and Los Angeles is recognized by the New York commission, while Al Hostak of Seattle is recognized by the national boxing association.

Fleischer braves assassination in Seattle by saying that Garcia turned in a better record for '39 than did Hostak, "and if Al hopes to gain universal recognition as titleholder, he'll have to put Garcia out of the way." Fleischer then dons a bullet-proof vest as follows, "but in view of the recognition given to each, we list them on an equal basis."

"The Ring" magazine rates the top fighters of the world for 1939 as follows: Heavyweight Division—Joe Louis, Tony Galento, Bob Pastor, Lou Nova, Tommy Farr, Johnny Paycheck, Red Burman, Max Schmeling, Arturo Godoy. Light Heavyweights—Billy Conn, Gus Lesnevich, Melio Bettina, Len Harvey, Dave Clark, Tiger Jack Fox, Jack McAvoy, Adolph Heuser, Teddy Yoncos, Al Colner. Middleweights—Cecferino Garcia and Al Hostak (leadership divided), Ron Richards, Ken Overlin, Ben Brown, Wellweights—Henry Armstrong, Ernie Roderick, Holman Williams, Fritz Zivic and Charley Burley. Lightweight—Lou Ambers, Sammy Angott, Davey Day, Leo Rodak and Jackie Wilson.

Featherweights—Joey Archibald, Pete Scalzo, Simon Chavez, Dave Castillon and Henry Jeffers. Bantamweights—Sixto, Escobar, K. O. Morgan, Tony Olivera, Lou Salica and George Pace. Flyweights—Little Dado, Enrico Urbani, Jackie Patterson, Jackie Jurich and Al Montana.

ST. LOUIS KNOCKS OUT
The Cardinals' first baseman, Bill Werber, led the team in the spring for $25,000, scored the most runs, 115.

Buddy Hassett, Bee's first baseman, hit the most singles, 162. Enos Slaughter, who finished eighth in batting with .320, was the top man in two-base hits, with 52. Billy Herman, Cubs, led in triples, with 18. Stanley Hack, Cubs, and Lee Handley, Pirates, each with a paltry 17. Lonnie Frey, Reds, and Merrill May, Phillies, tied for the most sacrifices, each with 25.

Only four players played in all their teams' games—McCormick, drouth.

Will the Trojans Stop These Volunteer Backs?

Hipp's 289 New High Game for Pin Season

Failure of Six Pin to Drop on 11th Ball Knocks Mansfield Bowler Out of Chance to Hit 300.

OF ALL the bowlers in Mansfield, Farrell Hipp received the best Christmas "gift." It was a 289 game, which ruined a chance for a perfect score by a fraction of an inch.

After piling up 10 straight strikes with a series of beautiful hits, Hipp's 11th ball appeared as though it struck the "13" pocket perfectly, but the six pin stood.

He converted the spare and the 289 game was not a bad effort, although it could have been a 300 hit just as well. He needed 12 in a row for the 300 game.

Hipp, who opened with a 218, dropped to 158 in his last game for a 665 series. The previous night he came through with a 667.

He paced the Ritz Nite club to a rousing 3003 total, which included games of 968, 1067 and 970. The string was good for two wins over the Ingram-Martin Oldsmobiles in an N. C. O. Traveling league match at Mader alleys.

Sonny Mader contributed a 687 to the total, closing with a 246. Dale Clinecker came through with a 603. The Oldsmobiles came through with a 2742 total.

The Ohio team, composed of seniors from 14 schools, led 7 to 6 at the half. In the second half they appeared to tire before the Florida team's great passing offense.

Charles Imber of Fostoria scored for the Ohio team in the first five minutes on a two-yard plunge. McBride of Logan added the extra point.

On the first play of the third period, Peck of the Florida team took McBride's kickoff and ran 90 yards for a touchdown.

The Ohioans tried many passes in the last half but the passers were rushed badly and most of the throws were poorly executed.

Outstanding for the Ohio team were Norris of Ironton, Nonnemacher of Columbus South, Alban of Columbus West, Hart of Columbus West, Mike Horvath of Mansfield, Imber and McBride.

Mize Firm Believer In Old Adage Which Runs, 'If at First You Don't Succeed, Try Again'

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Johnny Mize, the big Georgia boy who plays first base for the St. Louis Cardinals, is a devoted believer in a time-worn adage which runs, "If at first you don't succeed, try again."

After finishing second two years hand-running in the race for the National League batting championship, Mize finally crashed through last season as the No. 1 batter of the senior circuit, the official averages showed today. Mize, a left-handed hitter with a vicious swing won the title with an average of .349 for 153 games. He finished 18 points ahead of Frank McCormick, Cincinnati first sacker.

Out ahead of Mize but in too few games to be considered a contender and at bat only 233 times was Don Padgett, the Cardinals' big catcher. He had a mark of .399 for 92 games.

Besides winning the batting crown, Mize, who a year ago was benched for a time by Frankie Frisch, then manager of the Cardinals because he wasn't hitting, led the league for the second straight year in total bases, 352, and for the first time in home runs with 28.

Celtics Annex 334 Victories In 358 Games

Pro Team to Play in City Friday Compiles Remarkable Record in Last 3 Years.

One of the greatest winning records ever compiled in professional football has been registered by the Original New York Celtics, who will play the City Class A league All-Stars at Mansfield high school Friday night.

During the last three seasons, the Celtics have won 334 games against 24 defeats. They won 63 games in a row two seasons ago.

The Celtics won 111 games and lost only six during the 1936-37 season, added 114 wins against eight losses in 1937-38 and registered 109 victories in 119 contests last winter.

Their appearance at the Tiger lair Friday night will mark the first time in 15 years that the Celtics have appeared in Mansfield. They played in this city when they represented Cleveland in the old National pro league.

The lineup of the team to oppose the Celtics has not been completed, but it will include the strongest quintet of league players that can be put on the floor.

The New York team's lineup includes Dutch Dehnert, Davey Banks, Rusty Saunders and Nat Hickey, prominent in pro game circles for many years.

Mayflower seeks its third win against St. John's Evangelical, while the unbeaten First Methodist club takes on the Park Avenue Baptist team. The Central Methodists meet First Lutheran in the other game.

Vols Weakened By Bad Knees

Cafego, Suffridge, Tennessee's All-Americans, May See Little Action in Rose Bowl.

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—Two of Tennessee's best players will start the Rose Bowl game with knees so bad that if they were horses they would be destroyed.

One is George Cafego, All-America halfback, and the other is Bob Suffridge, All-America guard.

Cafego is in such bad shape in the vicinity of his knees that he was unable to attend the Christmas party given to the team by Clarence Brown, Hollywood movie director and a graduate of Tennessee. Cafego was hurt in the game against the Citadel two months ago. In a cutback off tackle everything in his left knee went, as he puts it, "all to hell," and since that time in games against Vanderbilt, Kentucky and Auburn he has played a total of two minutes.

He didn't get in the Vanderbilt game at all, lasted four plays against Kentucky and went out on the second play against Auburn. It is even money that he won't last more than one play against the Trojans of Southern California. Coach Bob Neyland says no one will really know his condition until the first block is thrown on him.

Take it from me, an old authority on knees, Cafego won't even last one play, because he won't start. When you are in such shape that you can't ride 15 miles on a bus to the loveliest party ever given a Rose Bowl team, then you aren't going to be able to take the beating that such Southern Californians as Smith, Hoffman, Winslow and Sohn hand out.

Suffridge's injury has not been given as much publicity as Cafego's, but it is almost as bad. Suffridge will start, and may even last most of the game, but he won't be the guard he was last year. He will have to wear a brace on his knee, and the brace will rob him of a lot of his speed. And when you weigh 184 and are riding against men who weigh 200 or more, you need that extra speed.

When you talk and fool around with the Tennessee rooters out here for the game, you soon realize that they wish the team of last year was here for the Rose Bowl. They consider the team of 1939 only 60 per cent as efficient as the club that wore the orange shirts of Knoxville in 1938. That was a better ball club, and a club that was hungrier for victory. This one has won a little too much for its own good. It is a little surfeited with triumphs and praise.

Of course, it may get hungry all over again after USC knocks it flat on its back for a touchdown or two.

An hour's brisk workout pre-faced a Christmas dinner for the Vols yesterday, but heavy practice, emphasizing defensive and offensive passing in today's drills.

The Trojans began their toughest series of workouts, after a two-day holiday.

Buckles Down To Serious Work.
MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Coach Don Faurot's Missouri eleven buckled down to serious practice today for their Orange Bowl game Jan. 1 while Georgia Tech drilled on football fundamentals.

Missouri's squad took Christmas day off and went deep-sea fishing while Tech went through a stiff two-hour drill.

Coach Bill Alexander of Tech worked Robinson and George Webb, ends; George Wood and Eston Lackey, tackles; Neil Cavette and Butch Abernold, guards; Center Jim Wright; and Backs Buck

Field Goal Gives NORTHERNERS VICTORY.
MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—A 22-yard field goal by Quarterback Benny Babula in the final period broke a tie score and gave the Garfield, N. J., high school football team a 16-13 victory over Miami high in a spine-tingling Christmas night Health Bowl game.

The three-pointer offset a brilliant 78-yard touchdown run by Miami's little David Eldredge, which, with the conversion, had tied the score at 13-all a short time before Babula's kick.

Man Returns $910 He Finds in Sewing Machine He Bought.

HAWESVILLE, Ky. (AP)—When Mrs. Rebecca Richey died, her furniture and other belongings were sold by her nephew, Jack Goering, to Lester Boling, a farmer. Boling accepted a sewing machine in the lot, then sold it to Otto Neuton, a neighbor. Neuton examined the machine and found $910 in five and ten dollar bills in one of the drawers. He turned the money over to the administrator of Mrs. Richey's estate. He Goering and Boling all were given rewards.

U. S. Ignores German Protest Over Captured Ship

BRITISH CREW GIVEN PANAMA ENTRY PERMIT

Captive Nazi Freighter 'Free to Proceed to Sea' Army Commander Says.

(By Associated Press)
COLON, Panama.—Despite a German diplomatic protest, the British prize crew in control of a captured German freighter today was given clearance from Cristobal for a British port by the United States army command for the Canal Zone.

The protest, by Consul Walter Schmidt, "has not been entertained," said Major General David L. Stone, Canal Zone commander, and the freighter, the 4,930-ton Duesseldorf, was "free to proceed to sea."

The Duesseldorf was captured Dec. 15 off the Chilean coast by the British cruiser dispatch two days after putting out from Valparaiso.

With her Swastika fluttering underneath a British naval ensign and with British seamen pacing her decks with fixed bayonets, the Duesseldorf completed her transit of the Canal in late afternoon yesterday and at 7:30 p. m., E. S. T., was granted clearance for Jamaica.

While the gray-painted freighter was moving across the isthmus the diplomatic dispute arose. General Stone said the difficulty revolved about the demand of a passenger, Hans Von Appen, former agent at Panama City, for the German Steamship Line, Hapag-Lloyd, for hospitalization. Von Appen demanded that he be taken to Santo Tomas hospital which is in the Republic of Panama—this after he had been taken to Gorgas hospital in the Canal Zone where physicians said he was in critical condition and required an emergency operation.

General Stone said Von Appen refused to undergo the operation at the Canal Zone hospital.

"I know it was a subterfuge," said General Stone, "but it was a question of humanity. The man was dangerously ill and did not want to undergo the operation at our hospital. I could not force the operation, so he was released to go to the Panama hospital."

Just how the demand for hospitalization was linked with the German protest against clearance—if it was—remained unclear and so did the general's reference to "subterfuge." Requests for fuller official comment were referred to the state department at Washington.

British Steamer Sunk By Torpedo, 14 Of Crew Dead

LONDON.—The British steamer Stanholme, 2,473 tons, was reported today to have been torpedoed and sunk with a loss of 14 lives off the west coast of England.

Ten survivors said the ship had been torpedoed without warning Christmas day.

Most of the crew was below deck when a terrific explosion sank the ship, only two hours after she left port.

The only uninjured survivor was the captain. There was one woman aboard, Mrs. Mabel Jenny, wife of the chief engineer. He drowned. Seaman E. L. Evans said, "We had no warning and no time to launch a lifeboat. I pushed a small raft we had on deck into the water and scrambled onto it."

"We were picked up by a lifeboat of a Norwegian steamer, whose crew had heard the explosion."

RESTORES SUGAR MARKET QUOTA

Roosevelt Terminates Action Taken to Prevent Hoarding at Outbreak of War.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt issued a proclamation today restoring marketing quota provisions of the sugar act.

"I have issued a proclamation today," the president said in a statement, "terminating the suspension of marketing quotas on sugar, which suspension was made necessary on September 11, 1939, by the extraordinary purchases of sugar by consumers immediately after the outbreak of the war in Europe and the excessive speculative activity and advancing prices which accompanied such purchases."

"Since that time consumer hoarding of sugar has ceased and the price of raw sugar has declined to the price which was in effect before the war."

"It should be noted that under the law the quotas may again be suspended if such action becomes necessary to protect the consumers."

Under a newly negotiated agreement with Cuba, the United States agreed to return to the duty of 90 cents a hundred pounds on Cuban sugar which was in effect before the quotas were suspended. During suspension of the quotas the duty was raised to $1.50.

Stuffed Turkey Had Nothing On These Newsboys

Five News-Journal newsboys were suffering from expanded waist-lines and bulging eyes today as the result of their Christmas celebration yesterday, a celebration made possible through the generosity of a Mansfield man and woman whose own children have grown up and left "the old nest."

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Goodman, 347 West Third street, were used to having children around them for the holiday and when their children grew up and married and had homes of their own in different cities, they decided to "adopt" five more each year, no matter where they might live.

And each year they've adopted newsboys. This was their first Christmas in Mansfield and several days before the holiday they called The News-Journal and asked for five boys to be their guests for dinner on Christmas day.

And today the boys were lethargic from a superabundance of food. "I'm not going to eat anything more for a week," one said, "on account of I ate a week's supply yesterday."

The turkey, they admit, may have been stuffed—but they went the turkey one better.

Not only was there a great meal for them, but they were showered with gifts. And if the Goodmans had half as much fun and enjoyment out of the party as the boys, then truly "a nice time was had by all."

RITE PLANNED

VOTE THURSDAY

3,000 at Westinghouse Ballot on Bargaining Agency.

More than 3,000 employees at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant are scheduled to vote at their own election Thursday to decide whether they will be represented by the Westinghouse Employees' association, an unaffiliated union, or no organization.

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, CIO affiliate, withdrew its name from the ballot to concentrate on a campaign to obtain votes against the independent group, NLRB officials said.

The collective bargaining election will be in charge of Oscar S. Smith, Cleveland, regional National Labor Relations board director.

Ice Skaters Open Season, Jam Lakes In Yule Finery

The winter sports season made its debut in Mansfield yesterday in a big way.

Hundreds of skaters, young and old, togged out in Christmas finery, invaded three city parks to try their skates on the ice during the afternoon and evening.

To make the park lakes safe for skaters, Frank R. Burton, superintendent of parks, announced today that during evenings when the ice on the lakes is safe for skating the lakes would be lighted.

He warned skaters not to venture out on the ice on nights when the floodlights are unlighted.

Three lakes are now safe for skaters, he said today. These are Liberty, North and Maple lakes. Only North lake and Liberty park are lighted.

HOLLYWOOD CHRISTMAS LEAVES STARS BRUISED AND SHOCKED

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD.—Notes on Hollywood the day after Christmas:

Claire Trevor, critically ill several days ago of influenza, continued to gain. Her husband, radio writer Clark Andrews, spent Christmas at her bedside.

Lola Lane, badly bruised and shocked in an auto accident Saturday, also was "better."

Miriam Hopkins nursed a thorn her studio reported was thrown out of joint when she did a new dance, "Shakes the see-saw," for her latest picture.

Binnie Barnes, British actress, displayed a five and one-half carat diamond—a gift from Radio Announcer Mike Frankovich. They plan to wed in September.

Helen Fortescue Reynolds—Helen Whitney in films—faced a contest of her demand for sole custody of Richard Roland Reynolds, II, from her divorced husband, J. Louis Reynolds, tinfoil manufacturer. Answering the one-time New York and Washington, D. C., society girl's suit, he described joint custody as to the boy's best interests.

Bobs Watson, juvenile actor, was chosen grand marshal of Pasadena's junior tournament of roses parade, to be held Thursday. He will share the spotlight with nine-year-old Queen Joyce Erickson.

An insurance company's reward notice disclosed theft of a $5,000 diamond and ruby bracelet and a $250 ring from Mrs. Milton Bren, wife of the producer, at a swank nearby resort's premiere.

Among others, the Rev. Louis D. Newton, Atlanta Baptist clergyman, and Bishop Paul B. Kern of the Methodist church, at Nashville, Tenn., questioned the action, chiefly on that ground.

Early, informally discussing such questions, said Mr. Roosevelt had the constitutional right to appoint Taylor and added that he never had held and does not now hold any intention of according diplomatic recognition to the vatican.

Reviewing the responses Early said that of more than 400 telegrams received at the White House

EARLY REPLIES TO CRITICS OF VATICAN ENVOY

'They'll Be Satisfied When They Know Facts' He Says of Taylor Appointment.

WASHINGTON.—Stephen Early, White House press secretary, expressed the belief today that when the few who have questioned President Roosevelt's appointment of a personal representative to the vatican "learn the facts they will be satisfied."

Mr. Roosevelt announced Saturday night that he had chosen Myron C. Taylor, retired chairman of United States Steel and presently head of the inter-governmental refugee committee, to go to Rome in the interest of more closely coordinating efforts for world peace.

Simultaneously the chief executive invited Dr. George A. Buttrick, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, as a Protestant leader, and Rabbi Cyrus Adler, president of the Jewish Theological seminary of America, as a leader of the Jewish faith, to confer with him here "from time to time."

Favorable responses to the president's action in many quarters of government and organized religion were tempered in some instances by expressions of hope that Mr. Roosevelt was not working toward re-establishment of formal diplomatic relations with the vatican. Such formal relations were severed in 1867.

Among others, the Rev. Louis D. Newton, Atlanta Baptist clergyman, and Bishop Paul B. Kern of the Methodist church, at Nashville, Tenn., questioned the action, chiefly on that ground.

Early, informally discussing such questions, said Mr. Roosevelt had the constitutional right to appoint Taylor and added that he never had held and does not now hold any intention of according diplomatic recognition to the vatican.

Reviewing the responses Early said that of more than 400 telegrams received at the White House not more than four "might be called critical."

Early said Taylor would have the rank but not the official title of an ambassador and would be paid out of the state department's general fund if he requested any salary, which he has not yet done. Taylor will take the post, Early explained, on exactly the same arrangement as that of Norman H. Davis, who worked as an ambassador-at-large in Europe, first under President Hoover and later under Mr. Roosevelt, until he was appointed chairman of the American Red Cross.

Traffic Victim With Severed Windpipe Improving.

Marked improvement has been shown in the condition of Francis Leemaster of Shelby, who has been confined to General hospital for the past month with a severed windpipe, suffered in a truck accident Nov. 24 near Springfield on route 39, hospital attendants reported today.

They added that he was "considerably improved." Critically injured when the West Dry Cleaning truck he was driving, struck another truck, Leemaster now is expected to recover unless something unexpected develops, it was said.

He will never be able to talk again, his physician said.

In addition to the severed windpipe, he suffered a lacerated right eyeball, fractured lower jaw and fractured left collarbone. Leemaster breathes and is fed through tubes.

LOCKE RETURNS, TACKLES JOB OF PICKING CABINET

Confers With G. O. P. Committee Heads Today to Go Over Recommendations.

Mayor-elect William J. Locke, back from a Florida vacation, today buckled down to the job of selecting men for his cabinet who will direct departmental affairs during the next two years.

As his first step Locke was scheduled to meet with Republican executive committee heads today to go over the recommendations of the committee.

The new mayor, who will take over the reins of the city government next Monday, said that several of the selections may be decided on at today's meeting.

"I hope to have some of the appointments made within the next two or three days," he said this morning.

Delay in the naming of a superintendent of the waterworks was seen today with the death of Arthur McMullen, former chief of that department during the administration of former Mayor E. A. McFarland, who was slated to take over his old position Jan. 1.

Locke said however that he hoped to have all department heads and office employee appointments made this week.

Positions to be filled include the superintendencies of streets, garbage, sewer, maintenance, sewage treatment plant and waterworks, a telephone operator and a stenographer.

ADDED ACREAGE AT WEST POINT TO HIT 15,000

First Condemnation Action at Military School to Affect 50 Land Owners.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—A classroom battlefield for the army's future officers will be provided in a great expansion project underway at the U. S. Military Academy.

Government attorneys are pushing negotiations for an eventual 15,000-acre addition to the reservation, which already sprawls over 3,500 acres of rugged Catskill mountainside.

Academy officers admit that although the project coincides with the War department army expansion program, enlargement of the officers' training unit considerably predates recent activity. Plans were authorized by congress in 1931 and $1,500,000 was appropriated for that purpose.

Maneuver Fields Included.

It will offer extensive facilities for field training in the academy's own back yard. Provision is made for maneuver fields, camp sites, and practice ranges. The ranges will permit small arms and rifle target shooting, plus light field-artillery training.

The projected boundaries also will surround three small lakes, providing a new water supply; an iron mine, the former J. Pierpont Morgan summer estate and virtually will engulf Hudson river townships.

The project marks the first major expansion of the military academy since its inception early in the 19th century on a site militarily significant almost since America was colonized.

Before the United States became a nation, and for many years after, the Hudson bottleneck was the military key to control of the continent.

At the outbreak of the Revolution, the Colonists and British realized the importance of the Hudson Valley, and West Point became the strategic center. Gen. George Washington established headquarters there in 1779.

Proposed School.

It was three years earlier that Gen. Henry Knox proposed a national military training school. Although the Continental Congress resolved that a committee prepare such a plan, no action was taken until after the war. Then, Gen. Washington recommended establishment of the military post at West Point.

Ten cadets attended the U. S. Military Academy's first classes, July 4, 1802. In 1812 it was expanded to accommodate 250 cadets and in 1917 was evolved into substantially its present form. Its authorized enrollment is 1,960 cadets now.

Santa Claus Visits Children At Westinghouse

Santa Claus visited this group of 500 children at the auditorium of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company Saturday afternoon and gave each a gift and a "treat" of candy. Besides Santa there was a circus with dogs, ponies and a monkey. Shown below are two happy twins at the party, Donna (left) and Dorothy Schawewer, and Nurse Lillian Heffelfinger, who assisted in looking after the youngsters. The party, which was for the children of employees, was arranged by R. O. Richards of the personnel department, and was the first of its kind given by Westinghouse.

IT'S NO CRIME

Auto Accidents Need Not Be Court Cases, Judge Rules.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Two automobiles can collide at a street intersection without either driver being criminally reckless or careless, Judge Hunter Wood believes.

Two drivers hailed into his court were vehement in accusing each other. Both demanded an arrest. So officers charged one with recklessness and the other with carelessness.

Judge Wood held only a question of civil damages was presented by the case and "police court is no collecting agency."

TOO MUCH WAR

Dogs of War Scare Away the Birds of Peace.

NEUCHÂTEL, Switzerland.—(AP)—The storks of Alsace, so beloved by Alsations that they became the insignia of the whole French province, have been frightened away by the guns of war and are making new homes near Neuchâtel, Switzerland.

Many another bird, including many wild ducks and swamp birds, have fled the Alsace marshes and the Alsatian Voges for new homes in Switzerland.

Most of them have chosen homes around Lake Neuchâtel—just a few hundred miles south of their usual home.

Alsatian storks, settling in Neuchâtel chimneys, were greeted with joy by the Neuchâtel farmers, for its considered a sign of good fortune to have a stork family choose your chimney for a nest.

SALES RECEIPTS UP 36 PER CENT

Figures Offer More Proof That Business Is Good.

Another proof that Richland county's holiday shopping business was good was the 36 per cent increase in sales tax collections for the second week of December over the same week of 1938.

The state treasurer's report listed receipts for the county at $13,837 for the week, a gain of $3,655 over the corresponding week week of last year. The statewide increase for the week was only 20 per cent, representing $190,944 in money.

Total collections in the county to the middle of December amounted to $476,244, an increase of $87,467 over the same period in 1938.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1939.

Americans are more interested in making history than in reading it.

If people worked for peaceful purposes the way they do for military objectives, this world would soon be a paradise.

Item reveals, "The federal government has 923,856 civil employees on its payroll"—with probably a few who are none too civil.

Finns Fight 'American Style'

TWO opposing theories of warfare, machines versus men, were matched on this front," writes an American war correspondent in Finland, of a recent campaign: "The Russian method was to use what was hoped to be an overwhelming mass of tanks and intense concentrations of artillery, holding the infantry back as auxiliary power. The Finnish defense theory was based on the value of man-power, with skillful, intelligent soldiers making the best use of geography, natural obstacles and mobility, to knock out the machines."

To Americans, recalling their own history and traditions, this method of fighting is more understandable than it seems to Europeans trained in the modern military schools. To millions of our people it must have occurred, in reading of the Finnish tactics, "Why, this is American fighting!" It is the way our revolutionary soldiers fought the British, a technique and strategy we learned from the Indians. It is individualistic warfare, keen and effective in a wild country, against enemies who fight in masses, encumbered by machines and camp gear.

The "lightning blow" which had been anticipated by Russia has failed to materialize, and if the help that Finland deserves, and which has been promised by the League of Nations, can be given soon there is at least a possibility that the little nation will be able to continue fighting off the invaders.

Save So That You Can Spend

MOST people understand, by the time they grow up, that money has no value, except as a convenient medium through which work can be exchanged for things that are needed or desired—necessities or luxuries.

If the small earnings of each day were immediately spent—or frittered away—there would be no possibility of acquiring the more costly things that are desired, such as household conveniences, a home, an automobile, a vacation trip—or whatever it may be that contributes to comfort or happiness.

This holiday season has been marked by more liberal spending, locally and over the entire United States, than has been seen for many years—possibly an all-time record in some cities.

Much of this buying has been of non-essentials—things that people like to have but which they can get along without if necessary. Nowhere else in the world is there such widespread ability to buy non-essentials as in the United States. This evidences the high standards of living that have been attained in this country and, in itself, is an important contribution to general prosperity.

It is necessary to keep in mind, however, that self-sustaining people must know how to save, as well as to spend, and that a program of consistent saving is as essential to happiness and contentment as supplying immediate needs.

In spite of conditions which made it necessary to stop paying interest on Christmas savings accounts it is interesting, and gratifying to learn that there is no appreciable drop-off in the number of such accounts being opened in Mansfield—for, after all, it is the principal sum being saved that really counts, rather than the comparatively small amount of interest heretofore paid.

Well-Used Air Service

SINCE service began last May the clipper planes of Pan American Airways have completed 100 regularly scheduled crossings of the Atlantic ocean and have started on the second hundred. There were eighteen passengers and 2,000 pounds of mail aboard on the 100th flight.

It looked for a while, in the days when preparatory work was being done on this service, as though war in Europe might postpone its development. Instead, the regular service was launched and the war which broke out four months later actually spurred patronage. Space on the planes is in great demand now.

The four planes used in the Atlantic service carried more than forty tons of mail and about 1,800 passengers in the first six months. That means 5,500,000 passenger-miles and 300,000,000 mail-pound-miles.

This is a much better use for man's aeronautical knowledge and skill than bombing cities.

Welfare of Majority Comes First

EDITOR HENRY EDWARD WARNER of the Baltimore Sunpapers urges that an automobile owner be held responsible for the condition and operation of his vehicle at all times, on pain of restriction or forfeiture of his driving privileges.

The proposal seems sound, at least as regards the physical condition of the car. It would put the dangerous jalloppies off the road and would stop the purchase of $10 cars by high school boys. Curtailment of such business and such motoring would undoubtedly increase highway safety.

"It is no denial of democracy," says Arthur Robb, commenting on this idea in Editor and Publisher, "to declare that the welfare of the majority, walking and riding, is paramount to the privilege of a man who can afford to drive only an unsafe vehicle."

Refugee's Idea of Democracy

AN EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD IMMIGRANT BOY recently won two prizes in a New York high school. He came to this country nine months ago, a Jewish refugee from Europe. One prize of $25 was awarded for the best essay in his school. The other, $15, was for the best essay submitted by a senior.

The boy wrote about his flight from Germany and later from Italy. He must have had plenty of interesting material and handled it well. One paragraph, quoted in the New York Post, suggests that the United States will acquire a fine new citizen if Erich Hirschberg remains here.

"Democracy," he wrote, "is not a beautiful painting to be looked at and sung of; it is a living reality that must be worked for and, if necessary, fought for. He who has once lived in servitude knows that only liberty makes life livable."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the lasting headaches for producers of theatrical enterprises, whether on the stage or in film, is the matter of proper billing for their players. Naturally, the stars want their names in larger type than that used in the advertisements and on the marquee for the supporting players. And more than one first class feud has developed over so small a thing as the fraction of an inch in type size in theatrical advertisements.

But—and here is a curious thing—these same players will eagerly accept parts on a radio program where their names are never mentioned. There is no billing in radio.

We have an excellent case in point in the instance of Van Heflin, who is leading man to Katharine Hepburn on Broadway in the comedy, "The Philadelphia Story." As such, Mr. Heflin's name is prominently displayed in all the advertisements. But every day he appears anonymously on the radio in a script serial known to millions simply as "Betty and Bob."

June Travis is another who plays anonymously in the radio serial "Girl Alone." On Broadway, Elspeth Eric is one of the leads in "Margin For Error," but on the air she is a background voice. I could name you dozens who fight for that little thing called stage billing. But on the air they are phantom voices, unknown and unrecognized by the millions who hear them.

HERE are three years that are certainly gone with the wind. It was in 1936, and Lloyd Lehrbas was sailing for China on one of those roving assignments that was to carry him across the Orient and on through the capitals of southern Europe, from Istanbul to Rome.

It was a warm summer's day. Some books were on the desk, new books, sent in by publishers. "Here," I said, "take one of these—take this one—and read it on the boat."

So he took it, and that was three years ago and the book turned out to be "Gone With the Wind." And now he has come back. He got off the boat just in time to attend the premiere of the picture that was made from that same book, the one with Rhett and Scarlett and Archie and Gerald and Aunt Pittypat.

ERICA MORINI, who is something of a lady Kreisler with a violin, and also something of a lady Alexander Wollcott when it comes to telling interesting bits of chit-chat, tells this one about the great Johann Strauss, and the time he came to play his waltzes to American audiences.

Those who hovered around the great Viennese noticed that he always carried a bag in addition to his regular luggage and violin. This bag was perforated with some odd looking vents. Strauss, it appears, was totting a pet around with him—a black poodle named when word of this became aired about he became besieged with the ladies who begged for a lock of the pup's hair to take as souvenirs. "When he got back to Vienna," Erica Morini says, "that poodle was bald as a billiard ball!"

Year's Progress In Medical Science.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THIS is a week of stock-taking and so we are allowed to review the progress that has been made in medicine during the past year and to look forward to what the future holds. I have spent some time in going through all the announcements of new methods that have been made during the year, and I should say that the outstanding piece of progress, from a practical standpoint, is the work on the surgical treatment of chronic deafness.

By an operation devised by Dr. Julius Lempert, it is possible to break up the bony fixation of the small bones of the middle ear, allowing resumption of normal transmission of sound waves.

Chronic deafness of the scierotic type is due to a change in the bony structure of the internal ear. Spongy bone is replaced by hard bone. This fixes the ossicles of the ear so that they can no longer move and transmit the vibrations of the ear drum.

Hearing Mechanism.

The mechanism of hearing depends upon the impingement of sound waves on the thin membrane, the ear drum. From the ear drum to the middle ear, the wave is transmitted by the movement of three tiny bones known as the ossicles. When the sound waves reach the inner ear, they are picked up by the fine fibers of the organ of hearing and transmitted to the higher centers in terms of sound.

In chronic scierotic deafness, the bone at the entrance to the organ of hearing turns from spongy bone to a marble-like hardness, fixing the ossicle so that it cannot move. The organ of hearing is intact and all the nerve connections are intact.

Dr. Lempert's operation contemplates going in and making a new connection so that sound waves can once more be transmitted directly to the organ of hearing.

I have been talking to an ear specialist who has spent some months with Dr. Lempert and has seen his results and learned his technique. The operation is long—it takes about four hours—and is necessarily an extremely difficult and delicate piece of surgery. The results, however, justify any amount of effort spent, because, I am told, in four out of five cases a good result is obtained. The possibilities of the relief of suffering are so great that any amount of effort spent in perfecting this procedure will be well rewarded.

It is the history of surgical procedure that in the course of time, operations are greatly simplified, and it is reasonable to expect that this one will have the same outcome.

The Clendening prize for the best research of the year goes to Dr. Lempert.

Prayer—A Bridge To God.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ALWAYS, day and night, two little angels kneel before the picture of my boy.

They are only bits of wood—hardly an inch high—crudely carved—their small robes colored with that blue which Mary wore. Yet something lovely arises from those tiny, kneeling figures—something fresh as the first Spring lilacs, sweet and gay as the first lark's song—and, feeling it, I am comforted. It makes it easier to leave his picture, knowing they are praying there.

Once I told a worldly friend that. She was horrified.

"You, an intelligent woman, with such a silly superstition!" she shrieked. "Surely you do not think those scraps of wood have any power to pray!"

Silly superstition! I wonder. What is prayer, anyway? Just a reaching of the troubled heart toward God.

What is God? Where is He? The wisest of us cannot tell. But wise or stupid, strong or weak, this we all know—that we need something greater than we, ourselves, can provide, to sustain us through the darkness of this life.

Perhaps, if we were wiser, we might not need bridges—but how many of us are wise? If our hearts could always be brave and tender and true—but hearts are such wayward things! And often when we most wish them for altars, they are rowdy roundups for all that is shoddy and mean.

Yet, always there is beauty. Somebody's gesture toward the truth—somebody's hunger made manifest in a carving, painting, a strip of glass, even a well-ploughed field, a well-baked loaf—these also may be tributes and prayers before which the heart may kneel and come away strengthened.

Two little angels guard my boy for me—reach beyond the agony of his loss toward that greater understanding and courage which I, in myself, cannot achieve.

Silly—superstitions—to think that they may help to bridge the gap? Perhaps. But what does the bridge matter if we stumble across it to God?

A Quiet Sunday

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"I WAS DURING the lull after late Sunday dinner. The day was cloudy and cool, and I brought a half-bushel basket full of corn ears into the livingroom to shell it for the chickens. My three small boys stood at my elbows and in front, eager to help.

"I wouldn't let them try it alone, if I were you," suggested my wife, coming to the door with the baby in her arms. "They'll scatter too much. I'm going to take a nap."

"Shelled corn isn't dirty," I observed, half aloud. "They have to do something."

Upon this cue, three pairs of eager hands were at once employed at prying the yellow grain from off the cobs. They were good at it. Corn flew in all directions. The basket was not large enough to catch the output from so many hands, so I put it down on the square of linoleum in front of the stove and bade them finish the job. Then I sat down with a newspaper by the window, and forgot them for awhile.

I was recalled to matters at hand by the stinging impact of a grain of corn above my right ear. At the same instant two more grains struck the window beyond, and a small handful beat a tattoo against the printed page. I did not take my tormentous seriousness, although a hasty side glance revealed that little progress had been made at shelling corn during my absence.

I saw a trail of grains across the rug, disappearing beneath the davenport; another went toward the piano; still another terminated

"My name is John Henderson. I represent the National Co-operative Federation of American Turkey Producers. . . . That's right."

Mr. Henderson clears his throat, glances hopefully at the press table, and turns a smiling face to the six dour gentlemen of the Committee for Reciprocity Information. "Gentlemen, we have already filed a brief in opposition to this trade agreement with Argentina, and I will not take your time to elaborate on that."

(But he does.) "Turkey-growing in the United States is no longer an incidental product of the barn lot. It is an industry of major proportions."

Here Mr. Henderson lifts his voice and his right arm, and gives a sweeping gesture to the south. "But if you allow these Argentinians to send their turkeys here, in competition with the fine old turkeys of the traditional American Thanksgiving—"

A faint smile crosses the face of the chairman, and he has an impulse—but checks it—to ask Mr. Henderson whether he means the turkeys are old, or the American tradition. The chairman is too tired for humor, and too bored. For five years, ever since the trade agreements act was passed in 1934, he has been listening to protests from American producers.

Librarian of Congress.

THINGS are different now around the Library of Congress under new Librarian Archibald MacLeish.

Unlike his haughty predecessor, Herbert Putnam, MacLeish affects no airs either in dress or manner. Putnam came to work in a wing-collar and swallow-tail coat. MacLeish wears roomy tweeds, soft collars and snappy ties. Putnam's office was a no-man's land to librarians. One of the first things MacLeish did was to get an order that all personal complaints be brought directly to him.

Library oldsters were aghast at this step, but others took MacLeish at his word. He has heard over 100 protests against favoritism by Putnam hold-overs in supervisory positions.

Also, since taking office, MacLeish has made it a point to meet every employee of the library. Some of them, accustomed to such friendliness, have responded with their fingers crossed.

Taking an elevator to his office one day, MacLeish moved back to the rear to permit a group of workers to enter. One of them, mistaking him for an acquaintance, said, "Hiya, fella, have a hot time at the party last night?"

Richard Newlon, 123 South

the bumpers to lock and leaving his car on the tracks. Before he could get the car loose, he and his brothers, Vernon and Ralph New-to avoid being hit by the train.

The car was badly damaged.

Finds Smartest Crooks Turn to Fraud Most Often

CHICAGO—(AP)—Simon M.
Tulchin, formerly a psychologist for the Illinois Institute of Juvenile Research, has finished a study of criminology, with the following interesting findings:

The smartest crooks turn to fraud.

The most stupid turn to murder,
burglary and sex crimes.

The crook of average intelligence follows the midway course of robbery and larceny.

Tulchin pointed out, however, that intelligence or the lack of it does not explain why a man turns to crime, even though it be a factor in his conduct.

The investigator, who in making an 11-year inquiry gave intelligence tests to 10,413 Illinois penitentiary and reformatory prisoners, said that criminals are not feeble minded or even inferior in intelligence to the general populace.

Actually the less bright criminals commit fewer crimes than the more intelligent ones, Tulchin found.

Offensive Drive.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Japanese
dispatches said today that 15,000 Chinese had been killed in recent fighting north and south of Hankow, in central China, at present the most active sectors in the conflict.

The Japanese reported heavy fighting in north, central and south China and said their counter-attacks in six provinces had forestalled a winter offensive by the Chinese.

It was admitted that the Chinese had made a number of bombing attacks late last week in the southern war zone, but, the Japanese said, all Chinese air bases in Kwangsi province were bombed and destroyed in retaliatory raids.

PRESSURE FOR PEACE BOOSTED

New Moves by Roosevelt and European Conflict.

ignored indefinitely. The peace ferment which is working so actively everywhere is bound to make itself felt in the long run.

In this lies the value of the steady pressure from President Roosevelt, the pope and other great personages. They are preparing the way for the moment when they feel that the time is ripe for concrete peace proposals.

Hope shouldn't lead us to rash conclusions about the imminence of peace, however, for we must recognize—as undoubtedly do the leaders of the peace crusade—that the present likely isn't the appointed hour. Neither warring side has yet felt the pinch of real privation, or the horrors of heavy loss of life and devastation—and their aims are as far apart as the two poles.

Herr Hitler is in no frame of mind to give up his freshly acquired territories. The allies are quite as determined that he shall not keep what they characterize as ill-gotten gains, and still declare against a Hitlerian peace.

So it would seem that the conflict must continue until one of the governments is sufficiently squeezed to incline to peace. Just how long it will require to reach it, is anybody's guess.

Why Did He Stop Dating?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Six months ago, I met and started going out with a man 27 years of age. I am almost 19. We went out together on an average of twice a week, and he treated me perfectly grand and we never had any arguments.

A little over a month ago he just stopped asking me to go out, with no word of explanation. I can think of no reason why he should do this. I am always neat and clean in my appearance, don't drink or smoke, and have many friends.

I see him every day, as he works nearby, but when I asked him why he stopped so suddenly taking me out, he didn't want to talk about it. He speaks to me, but acts as if nothing has happened. I like him very much and it hurts me terribly to be treated like this without any reason. I just can't understand, because he has even told me he loves me.

I can't seem to enjoy myself with my other friends and am thinking of asking him again to tell me why. Would you advise

At the pre-holiday formal dance of Beta Sigma Phi sorority which was held in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel Friday night the above group of dancers (top) were photographed "sitting one out." They are Miss Mary Priess, Robert Daniels, Miss Sue Priess, Arthur Weber, Ford Linzee and Miss Louise Krause. In the lower picture a group of the pledges of Sigma Kappa Gamma are shown as they knelt before the improvised altar at the home of Miss Dorothy Kelly, 241 Rhein avenue, Friday night. The girls, who were being formally initiated into the club, are (reading from left to right) the Misses Ila Mae Smith, Marjorie Drake, Katherine Landfair, Marilyn Wright, Marjorie Walker, Ruby Rowe and Doris Kiraly. Three pledges not shown above were the Misses Betty Jane Ackerman, Louise Scott, Arlene James.

it? I'd feel so much better if I really knew what was wrong. "VICKIE."

There are dozens of reasons why a young man may stop calling on his best girl. And it would be more square and satisfactory if he'd give her the reason instead of all this shadow-boxing, which is distressing and must be embarrassing to him. Here are a few of the reasons, which have been given to me by young men over many years: He finds himself falling in love with a girl and hasn't enough money to marry. He's too poor to take her places. Feels he's unfair in keeping away a more desirable "steady." Has fallen in love with another girl, and hasn't the courage to tell. Has got mixed up with a vamp and is ashamed to tell. Has to help out back home and doesn't wish to confide family poverty. Thinks marriage at present would be a handicap to his career.

Effective Control of Baby

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
At a recent session of my class of young mothers and fathers at Western Reserve University, we discussed the problem of establishing early, effective control of the baby.

We began with the basic biological principle that all living things tend to escape the painful and to approach the pleasant, and to avoid repeating what had proved painful and to repeat what had proved pleasant. Our principle of guidance, therefore, was to make painful what we want the child always to avoid, and pleasant what we want him always to do.

But to the tot many things are pleasant that he must not do if he is to be safe, and if he is to learn to respect authority and the rights of others.

As soon, then, as the tot begins to toddle, begin to train him to avoid automatically and permanently specific perils, such as running into the street or touching the gas jet. Be right on hand the first time he is likely to do these things, in order to give him instant pain; and always thereafter until he avoids them. Also have available attractive things he immediately can turn to with pleasure.

Here are some questions the parents in the class asked:

Q. What kind of pain?

A. Several smacks on his bare, fat thighs with your bare, flat hand.

Q. And if there are exceptions?

A. Then it will take more spankings and a longer period of time to

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON
Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I remembered nothing from the time I settled down among my pillows until I felt Lillian's hand on my wrist, giving it a gentle pressure.

"You said eight o'clock," she said, "so the human alarm clock has gone into her dance. But I'd like to snooze a little longer."

"No, indeed," I told her "Are the rest up?"

"We're the only ones stirring on this floor except Miss Whitlock, Katharine and Faith," she said. "Of course, Jim and Katie are functioning downstairs as per usual. But everybody except Faith was up so late last night that they're not yearning to leave the comfortable bay. That goes also for Olga and her mother, who did not join in the reunion last night, but who never rise until after eight anyway."

"Olga was awake late last night," I reminded her, with a recollection of the telephone call which the young princess had put in for Philip Verizen.

"So she was, so she was," she assented. Then she looked at me intently.

"How's the little backbone this morning? Is it still rigid with determination to tell Queen Olga ALL, or has some jelly sneaked into its composition?"

"It is rigid," I said. "I do not see any other way out of this."

"Mess," she finished.

"All right!" I assented. "I'm going through with the job, but I'm announcing right now that I don't like any part of it."

"I wouldn't like you if you did," she told me, grinning impishly. "But I never knew you to duck anything unpleasant yet, so I'm banking on you. However, you can't go into action with either Olga or Mary until they awaken, so don't you think it would be a good idea for me to order breakfast for you while you dress? I prescribe also having it served up here. You don't want to have your little mind distracted from your chores by the idle chatter of the other inmates of this institution, provided they get up

THEATERS

The hottest story out of Hollywood comes by way of the Motion Picture Herald and tells of the displacement of a queen at the box office. For four years Shirley Temple has been the undisputed queen of the box office and the story was not by her publicity agent but by the hard clank of dollars in the till. This year the dimpled queen slipped into fifth place. Mickey Rooney was away ahead of everyone in attracting cash customers to the box office. In second place was Tyrone Power with Spencer Tracy third. Clark Gable was fourth and Miss Temple fifth. The next five biggest money makers were Bette Davis, Alice Faye, Errol Flynn, James Cagney and Sonja Henie.

Our Men Notice Things

By MME. QUI VIVE
Said a small boy to his mother "When you were at school today your slip showed. It showed a lot under your skirt. I was terribly embarrassed and I saw some of the other guys looking at you. I hate to have them see my mother's underwear."

They start that early, these men of ours, observing how their women look, desiring above all things to have them appear attractive to the eye. You think they don't notice? They see everything.

Famous Funsters.

Kay Kyser, one of the top bracket orchestra men, brings his quartet of funsters from his radio program to his first motion picture. "That's Right—You're Wrong," which is at the Madison, Ginny Sims, Sully Mason, Harry Babbitt and Ish Kabibble, who are familiar to every one who follows the Kyser programs, make their screen debut with Kyser. Adolph Menjou and Lucille Ball head the cast.

Just Acts That Way.

Acting dumb is the smartest thing Eddie Albert does. In fact, it's given him a career. When he left soda-jerking in Minneapolis, his friends said he was dumb for giving up a job, and he had to act dumb when he played stooge to a strong man in vaudeville. His first big movie role in "Brother Rat" was another "dumb" one. He continues in "Four Wives," current at the Ohio, as the husband of Rosemary Lane.

Introducing Linda.

When "Hotel For Women" was produced the big name in it was Elsa Maxwell, internationally famous "play girl," but after the film's release, it was Linda Darnell who held the spotlight. The Louisiana girl made her film debut in Miss Maxwell's picture and leaped to box office importance over night. Ann Sothern, James Ellison are also in the cast. The picture is at the Ritz.

Country Store Returns.

"Inside Information" which will be shown tomorrow and Thursday at the Park is the story of a rookie cop whose scientific methods are pitted against the prejudices of the veteran on the force. June Lang, Dick Foran and Harry Carey are in the cast. "Bad Lands" is an unusual tale of how nine men died at a desert water hole. On Thursday night the popular Fat Sanders and his Country Store returns to the Park and will be there each week on the same night.

Saga of Transportation.

For its mid-week attractions the Majestic presents "Union Pacific" with Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck, and Bert Wheeler and Marie Wilson in "Cowboy Quarterback." The first named is the dramatic story of America's first transcontinental railroad; how it came to be built and the obstacles to be overcome by the company. Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy and Lynn Overman are seen in this saga of transportation.

Said a small boy to his mother "When you were at school today your slip showed. It showed a lot under your skirt. I was terribly embarrassed and I saw some of the other guys looking at you. I hate to have them see my mother's underwear."

They start that early, these men of ours, observing how their women look, desiring above all things to have them appear attractive to the eye. You think they don't notice? They see everything.

Famous Funsters.

Kay Kyser, one of the top bracket orchestra men, brings his quartet of funsters from his radio program to his first motion picture. "That's Right—You're Wrong," which is at the Madison, Ginny Sims, Sully Mason, Harry Babbitt and Ish Kabibble, who are familiar to every one who follows the Kyser programs, make their screen debut with Kyser. Adolph Menjou and Lucille Ball head the cast.

Just Acts That Way.

Acting dumb is the smartest thing Eddie Albert does. In fact, it's given him a career. When he left soda-jerking in Minneapolis, his friends said he was dumb for giving up a job, and he had to act dumb when he played stooge to a strong man in vaudeville. His first big movie role in "Brother Rat" was another "dumb" one. He continues in "Four Wives," current at the Ohio, as the husband of Rosemary Lane.

Introducing Linda.

When "Hotel For Women" was produced the big name in it was Elsa Maxwell, internationally famous "play girl," but after the film's release, it was Linda Darnell who held the spotlight. The Louisiana girl made her film debut in Miss Maxwell's picture and leaped to box office importance over night. Ann Sothern, James Ellison are also in the cast. The picture is at the Ritz.

Country Store Returns.

"Inside Information" which will be shown tomorrow and Thursday at the Park is the story of a rookie cop whose scientific methods are pitted against the prejudices of the veteran on the force. June Lang, Dick Foran and Harry Carey are in the cast. "Bad Lands" is an unusual tale of how nine men died at a desert water hole. On Thursday night the popular Fat Sanders and his Country Store returns to the Park and will be there each week on the same night.

Saga of Transportation.

For its mid-week attractions the Majestic presents "Union Pacific" with Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck, and Bert Wheeler and Marie Wilson in "Cowboy Quarterback." The first named is the dramatic story of America's first transcontinental railroad; how it came to be built and the obstacles to be overcome by the company. Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy and Lynn Overman are seen in this saga of transportation.

NO SURE WAY TO TELL

SOME SLAMS, which are easy enough to make in the play, can't possibly be bid soundly, because there is no way for one partner to find out certain crucial things about the holding opposite him. Even if he could find out, the slam still might be dependent upon the way the opponents' honors are placed. For that reason, a sizable defeat of the opponents' doubled contract has to be preferred to reaching out for the slam in the dark.

The diamond king, heart ace, a heart ruff, the diamond ace and later the spade ace gave East and West five tricks, setting the contract 800 points.

Notice how surely 6-Clubs would have been made, but also how East and West had no way to learn that fact.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD
(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER THIRTY

What happened after that night when Nicky came to Ellen's apartment to take her to dinner and found Fabienne believing that he had come seeking her, might have been called a comedy of errors.

It would never have happened if Fabienne and Ellen had not fenced so delicately in the old, gaiter game of protecting each other from knowledge that each believed would cause the other pain.

"Not for anything in the world would I permit myself to be remotely interested in your man," they might have said to each other. Except that they never said anything about either Nicky or Bill, unless it were some perfunctory thing like, "If Bill comes to the house to take me home, Fab, will you tell him that I had to go up to Twenty-second street for a special meeting?" Or, "Ellen, I expect Nicky will be around a little later, I'd like to tell him that I have a rehearsal. I won't be through until late. Maybe you two can go to a movie or something."

Ellen and Fab, Nicky and Bill. The lives of the four of them seemed to be closely knit those days. All the other beaux that Fabienne had mentioned the night she came back to live at Ellen's apartment were mysteriously eliminated from the lists.

It seemed natural that Nicky would be at the apartment as often as Bill, now that Nicky had decided he was bored with Maryland and had moved into a small apartment of his own.

Fabienne was rather proud of Nicky, and encouraged his coming to the Twelfth street apartment frequently. Nicky was doing very little drinking and he was learning to cook, doing up little dinners for himself and Fabienne, and Ellen and Bill, of course. They were gems. The apartment was very gay those long winter evenings.

Fabienne was glad to have Nicky there. It made her feel freer in the presence of Ellen and Bill. Also her days were long and dull. Ellen would not permit her to return to the settlement house to work during the days, saying that her three evening dramatic classes were enough for a convalescent.

was over, he held her young hand in his dry old one and said, "You're a fine young woman, Fabienne. Your grandfather would be proud of you. The work you're doing deserves a fine reward."

That was one of the nights that Bill was waiting to take her home. "Fab, if Bill comes to take me home, tell him I had to leave for a meeting up town." Bill stood by, looking much prouder of Fabienne than he should.

She explained to him, "Mr. Hardy is just prejudiced because he's an old friend."

"I'm not such an old friend," Bill told her, fastening the zipper of her galoshes. "I'm not a bit prejudiced and I think the work you're doing is pretty fine. What are you going to do about it?"

"Disillusion you," she said promptly.

"It would take a lifetime to do that," he said, looking up at her from where he sat at her feet. His eyes were twinkling at her and an expression of waiting for a response was written on his features.

It didn't seem possible that Fabienne wouldn't understand his meaning. But obviously Fabienne didn't. She took her foot away and said brightly, "Time to go, Bill. We might pick up Ellen at her meeting."

"It's after ten, and I ordered you to bed at ten. I'll take you home. Ellen will get home all right."

"Now, she said later, 'if it were Ellen who'd brought off this theater project there'd be some truth to the noble purpose. Ellen was born noble and unselfish. But not little Fab. Ellen does things for other people because she's naturally a giver. You have no idea, Bill, what that girl has done in one very short lifetime!'

"You know, when we found out that grandfather had left Willoughby house to charity, with the understanding that Ellen was to be the works, I had some very queer ideas about her. None of them admiring. Now I've eaten all my own words."

"I've never told you about Ellen and me," Bill said.

Fabienne's heart did a loop into her throat and zoomed back. The little theater on the third floor was finished, complete to the last detail. Every twinkling bulb was in place in the row of footlights. Rose Riccio was president of the dramatic league. Three evenings a week Fabienne met her group from six to nine and left with a radio to dance until midnight, if they liked.

One night old Andrew Hardy came to the settlement house to watch Fabienne work and, when it knew her and she talked about you—"

Bill looked at her with a funny expression. "Sure," he said, interrupting the flow of her words. "I guess Ellen does like me. If she doesn't, she's put up a fine show. We've known each other since we were in high school. I took her to her first dance—and had to take her home on a trolley car."

"I'll bet she loved it," Fabienne said staunchly.

"She said she did. But was I ashamed! Her father was the town's leading doctor, a rich man in a small town terms. But most of his wealth was in friendship. The whole town revered him. Well, to make a long story short, David Chapman was my hero. He was the man who made me want to become a physician."

This was something Fabienne didn't know. She listened with avid interest.

"Ellen went to college and I went to college—to the same state university. Then it came time for me to go to medical school. Some insurance money I hoped to use to pay my tuition had to be used for something else. Meanwhile Dr. Chapman had died. Then Ellen stepped in and offered to lend me the money her father left her."

"Did you take it?"

"Yes," he said. "I've paid it back, but I can never pay back what I owe to Ellen. I said she was an angel and that will go forever. I just wanted you to know."

Sick with wondering if he knew how much she cared for him, she said very low, "I'm glad you told me, Bill. I knew that you cared a lot for Ellen. You should!"

"Sometimes people get mixed up about these things," he said, relieved now that he'd made everything clear.

"They certainly do," she said in the same low voice. Then commanding a little more heartiness,

"But people who know the two of you wouldn't."

"That's good. I particularly wanted you to, because—"

"Yes?" she said, smiling broadly, a nice, sisterly smile.

"Well, I'm around Ellen's place most of the time. I guess maybe now you've got some idea why I am?"

"Of course I know I've got a very slim chance, but I'm willing to take that chance," he told her, capturing her arm in his.

Fabienne couldn't say anything. It was too much to ask of her to assure him that Ellen would undoubtedly be his for the asking.

Reviewing that conversation, Bill didn't know whether he was unhappy or happy over its results. Fabienne had said she understood his attachment to Ellen, and his reason for coming around so frequently, but she certainly hadn't encouraged him when he said he was willing to take a chance on winning her.

MORE MONEY

Currency In Circulation Hits $56.87 Per Capita.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Your share of America's coin and currency increased $1.03 last month to a record $56.87.

The per capita figure, based on a total of $7,482,230,677 reported in circulation on November 30, was declared a record because the only time it was exceeded, for a few days in the 1933 banking holiday, abnormal conditions made the figures meaningless.

Money in circulation has been rising steadily for many months, partly because of business conditions and partly because of Europeans hoarding American money. A year ago the circulation amounted to $51.96 per person.

GOES TO TOWN

'Miss Wilderness' Scared on First Visit to Town.

(By Associated Press)
BELLINGHAM, Wash. — May Larsen is a daughter of the wilderness and she doesn't react to dances like the ordinary 16-year-old girl.

With her two brothers, she had her first look at civilization here recently. The three had never been out of British Columbia's wild Cariboo Trail country before.

Taken to her first dance, May, an expert horsewoman and rifle shot, later confessed, "Meeting a cougar on the trail takes much less courage than going to a dance. I just trembled all over."

May, with her brothers, Jack, 18, and Leonard, 13, gaped and gasped as they toured Bellingham. The youngsters got the most enjoyment out of riding in elevators. Invariably when the elevator stopped they'd ask the operator: "Did we go up or down that time?"

The Larsens live at Roe Lake, 350 miles north of here in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. Their father operates a hunting and fishing resort.

SEES HIMSELF, CALLS FOR AID

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— Grover Guthrie, theater usher, got a glimpse of how other people see him when he surprised his own wardrobe walking away on a stranger.

Guthrie called police and had the stranger arrested. The man admitted he had been into the usher's locker, in the basement of the theater building, while the usher was upstairs at work in his uniform.

The first to distinguish between sensory and motor nerves was Erasistratus, a great physician of the Third Century, B. C.

Amish Children Sticking to Bible For Simple Living

LANCASTER, Pa. —(INS)— One hundred children of Amishmen—commonly called "Pennsylvania Dutch"—this school season turned to studies in which the Bible and German language predominated.

Sons and daughters of the "plain people," they are gathered in Lancaster county's three little red school houses and removed from influences which might lure them from the fertile farmlands tilled for generations by their ancestors.

The Amish were permitted to keep their single-story frame school buildings as a result of litigation which required them to go to court for the first time in three decades.

The bearded, severely-attired Amish were granted permission by state education authorities to construct two schools of their own after a two-year fight against the erection of a consolidated school to replace 10 one-room structures heated by old-fashioned coal stoves.

The children, whose forbears fled Europe's religious intolerance, not only concentrate on studies of the Bible and the German language but on a course prescribed by the state department of public instruction.

BORDER JUMPER GETS THE SACK

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. — (AP)— Immigration officials are weary of supplying clothing to naked men and boys who swim the Rio Grande from Mexico and try to dodge immigration officers.

When a 12-year-old boy swam the river recently and was captured, the officers took a burlap bag, cut head and arm holes in it and sent him back to his Mexican home attired in the costume.

BELLEVEILLE, Ill. —(AP)— An airplane side-swiped a truck on a highway near here.

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

If you are suffering from a miserable chest cold, try this Massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with warm cloth. VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief—two ways at once. (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. This poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.
